Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum

The Guggenheim Museum's landmarked building, designed by celebrated architect Frank Lloyd Wright, is a unique UNESCO World Heritage site. Wright incorporated nature into the design of the museum – the spiraling rotunda mimics a nautilus shell, and the central oculus floods the museum's interior with natural light.

First opened in 1959, the building provides an extraordinary space for experiencing the museum's critically acclaimed special exhibitions and Thannhauser Collection of late nineteenth- century and early-twentieth century masterpieces by artists such as Paul Cézanne, Claude Monet, Pablo Picasso, Pierre-Auguste Renoir, and Vincent van Gogh.

Ronald O. Perelman Rotunda

With continuous, open spaces flowing freely one into another, the rotunda is well-suited for networking and social events. From cocktail receptions and seated dinners to large-scale productions, the rotunda is a grand, flexible event space.

Capacity: 800 reception, 250* seated dinner

*Seated events in the rotunda require a TPA permit to be filed. TPA filing fees apply.
